Need to Know

- Beginning on May 22 through mid-October, a timed entry reservation will be required to enter Rocky Mountain National Park during certain hours of the day. Timed entry reservations apply to all areas of Rocky Mountain National Park.
- Timed entry reservations allow park visitors to enter RMNP within designated 2-hour windows of time. You must enter the park during your designated 2-hour reservation window. If you are late, you may be asked by a park ranger to turn around and come back later in the day. Timed entry reservations apply to all areas of Rocky Mountain National Park. If you have a Timed Entry + Bear Lake Road Reservation, you must enter the entrance to RMNP and the entrance to the Bear Lake Road Corridor within your designated 2-hour window of time.
- This document is your timed entry reservation confirmation. Upon arrival at Rocky Mountain National Park, be prepared to show this document to a park ranger. Remember to print out a copy of this document or take a screenshot of the full document and save it. Cell service may not be available at the entrance to the park.
- In addition to a timed entry reservation, all park visitors will need to purchase or show a valid entrance fee or pass upon arrival.
